Sustainable Investing Essentials

According to a recent study, three-quarters of Gen Z consumers assert sustainability is more important when making purchase decisions than brand name.¹ We make financial choices every day. However big or small, each choice you make impacts you and your financial well-being. But how could your financial choices potentially impact the world around you? Could they bring positive changes? Could they align to what matters to you the most?

EVERFI Sustainable Investing Essentials is a free digital program that teaches high school students about what sustainable investing is with a focus on responsible decision-making that aligns to personal values and how to leave a lasting social impact.
