

General Data Protection Regulation

Make sure your employees understand the new EU rules for handling personal data

If your company collects or processes the personal data of any individual in the EU, you need to understand the European Union's General Data Protection Regulation, or GDPR.

The GDPR takes effect on May 25, 2018. This law strengthens data protection for residents of the EU and gives them more control over their personal information, such as credit card numbers, race, religion, ethnicity, and even their name. The penalties for non-compliance can be significant.

The clock has already started. How can you make sure your employees are properly accounting for this new regulation?

Just-in-Time Solution

EVERFI's General Data Protection Regulation booster course will give your employees the information they need in an efficient and effective learning experience. Working with 1,900+ corporations and municipalities, we design global ethics and compliance courses that teach employees important skills relating to harassment, diversity, security and culture.

Topics Covered

- What is the GDPR
- When and Where the GDPR Applies
- Staffing Implications
- Reporting Requirements
- Data Ownership
