

Character Playbook: Building Healthy Relationships

FREE DIGITAL LESSONS

Social Emotional Learning for Middle & High School

According to the Issue Brief, The Importance of Peer Relationships for Social-Emotional Development (2018), "All children experience occasional social stressors and peer conflicts, and 10 to 15 percent experience serious and chronic peer difficulties, including rejection, social exclusion, and victimization." Dealing with peer group dynamics and making and keeping friends requires one to be able to understand their own emotions, communicate effectively, and problem solve through situations.¹

Our new and improved Character Playbook course, available for the '22-'23 school year, is a digital program comprised of five lessons that is built upon Collaborative for Academic, Social, and Emotional Learning(CASEL)'s SEL framework. It is an innovative course covering key concepts around five core competencies (self-awareness, self-management, social awareness, relationship skills, and responsible decision-making).
